INDICTMENT

February 2005 Term – At Alexandria

General Allegations

THE GRAND JURY CHARGES THAT:

1. At all times relevant to this Indictment, al-Qaeda (also known as al-Qaida) was a worldwide, multinational, terrorist organization dedicated to opposing non-Islamic governments, particularly the United States, with force and violence. Al-Qaeda was founded by Usama bin Laden and other individuals.

2. Beginning in approximately 1989, bin Laden and al-Qaeda sponsored, managed, and financially supported training camps in Afghanistan and elsewhere. These camps were used to instruct members and associates of al-Qaeda and its affiliated terrorist groups in the use of firearms, explosives, chemical weapons, and other weapons. In addition to providing training in the use of various weapons, these camps were used to conduct operational planning against targets around the world. These camps also were used to train al-Qaeda members and associates in security and counterintelligence methods, such as the use of codes, passwords, and surveillance techniques.

3. Beginning in the 1990s, bin Laden and other individuals associated with al-Qaeda sought to recruit United States citizens and citizens of other Western countries in order to exploit their ability to blend into Western society and travel more freely within the United States and Western Europe in furtherance of al-Qaeda's operational and strategic objectives.

4. On or about January 23, 1995, President William J. Clinton, exercising his authority under the International Emergency Economic Powers Act, issued Executive Order 12947, in which he found that "grave acts of violence committed by foreign terrorists that disrupt the Middle East peace process constitute an unusual and extraordinary threat to the national security, foreign policy, and economy of the United States . . . .” In Section 1(b) of the Executive Order, President Clinton ordered that “any transaction or dealing by United States persons or within the United States in property or interests in property of the persons designated in or pursuant to this order is prohibited, including the making or receiving of any contribution of funds, goods, services to or for the benefit of such persons . . . .”

5. In or about February 1998, Bin Laden and Ayman al-Zawahiri, another senior al-Qaeda official, issued a declaration under the heading “International Islamic Front for Jihad on the Jews and Crusaders,” which stated that “[k]illing Americans and their allies – civilian and military – is an individual duty for every Muslim who can do it in any country in which it is possible to do it . . . .”

6. On or about August 20, 1998, following terrorist attacks on the U.S. embassies in Kenya and Tanzania that resulted in the deaths of over two hundred people, President William J. Clinton issued Executive Order 13099 “in order to take additional steps with respect to grave acts of violence committed by foreign terrorists that disrupt the Middle East peace process and the national emergency described and declared in Executive Order 12947 of January 23, 1995 . . . .” Section 1 of Executive Order 13099 amended the Annex to Executive Order 12947 to add the Islamic Army, also known as al-Qaida, to the list of “Terrorists Who Threaten to Disrupt the Middle East Peace Process.”

7. As a result of Executive Order 13099, it became unlawful for United States persons to make any contribution of funds, goods, or services to or for the benefit of al-Qaeda, or to receive any funds, goods, or services from al-Qaeda.

8. On or about October 8, 1999, al-Qaeda was designated as a foreign terrorist organization by the Secretary of State pursuant to Section 219 of the Immigration and Nationality Act. As a result of this designation, it became unlawful for individuals within the United States, or individuals subject to United States jurisdiction, to knowingly provide material support or resources to al-Qaeda, or to attempt or conspire to do so.

9. For purposes of this Indictment, the term violent jihad refers to the use of armed force by, and on behalf of Muslims, to achieve objectives believed to be sanctioned by Islam.

10. On September 11, 2001, in a coordinated attack against the United States, Islamic extremists associated with al-Qaeda hijacked four commercial airplanes. They flew two of the planes into the World Trade Center towers in New York City, and one into the Pentagon in Virginia. The fourth plane crashed in Pennsylvania. Thousands of individuals were killed or injured, and there was enormous destruction of property.

11. On or about September 23, 2001, President George W. Bush, exercising his authority under the International Emergency Economic Powers Act, issued Executive Order 13224. In that Executive Order, President Bush found that “grave acts of terrorism and threats of terrorism committed by foreign terrorists, including the terrorist attacks in New York City, Pennsylvania, and the Pentagon committed on September 11, 2001 . . . and the continuing and immediate threat of further attacks on United States nationals or the United States constitute an unusual and extraordinary threat to the national security of the United States.” President Bush therefore declared “a national emergency to deal with that threat.”

12. Section 2(a) of Executive Order 13224 prohibited any future “transaction or dealing by United States persons or within the United States in property or interests in property blocked [under the Executive Order], including but not limited to the making or receiving of any contribution of funds, goods, or services to or for the benefit of those persons listed in the Annex to this order or determined to be subject to this order.” The first entity named in the Annex to Executive Order 13224 was “Al Qaida/Islamic Army.”

13. On or about May 7, 2003, the Saudi Government issued a public announcement that included the names and photographs of 19 individuals suspected of planning to conduct terrorist attacks within Saudi Arabia. Among the individuals named in the announcement were Coconspirator #2 and Coconspirator #4.

14. On or about May 12, 2003, terrorist attacks were carried out against residential compounds in Riyadh, Saudi Arabia, resulting in the deaths of approximately 34 individuals, including 9 Americans.

15. After the terrorist bombings on May 12, 2003, Saudi authorities located and arrested individuals who belonged to clandestine terrorist cells in Saudi Arabia.

16. On or about June 9, 2003, defendant AHMED OMAR ABU ALI (“ABU ALI”), a United States citizen who last resided in the United States in Falls Church, Virginia, in the Eastern District of Virginia, was arrested by Saudi authorities in Medina.

17. On or about June 16, 2003, defendant ABU ALI possessed at his residence in Falls Church, Virginia, in the Eastern District of Virginia, the following:

- a. A six-page document regarding various forms of surveillance by the government and private entities, and how to avoid such surveillance;
- b. An undated, two-page document praising the Taliban leader Mullah Omar and the terrorist attacks on September 11, 2001, and condemning U.S. military action in Afghanistan;
- c. An issue of the magazine "Handguns" bearing a subscription label in the name of "Ahmed Ali";
- d. Audio tapes in Arabic promoting violent jihad, the killing of Jews, and a battle by Muslims against Christians and Jews; and
- e. A book written by al-Qaeda official Ayman al-Zawahiri, in which al-Zawahiri characterizes democracy as a new religion that must be destroyed by war, describes anyone who supports democracy as an infidel, and condemns the Muslim Brotherhood for renouncing violent jihad as a means to establish an Islamic state.
